SHAKEUP ON IN FIELD PROHIBITION FORCES

MIDDLE WEST AND SOUTH ARE AFFECTED

SEVEN DRY DISTRICTS ARE ORDERED TO BE REDIVIDED

AGENTS AND INVESTIGATORS TRANSFERRED TO DIFFERENT TERRITORIES

By JOSEPH S. WASNEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 1.—(UP)—A general shake-up in the government's field prohibition forces proceeded in the middle west and south today as orders from Assistant of Treasury Lowman to redivide seven dry districts went into effect.

Agents and investigators were being transferred from one territory to another; several administrators' territories were enlarged or reduced and other officials did not know just how long they were to remain in the office.

Among the changes were:

North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Western Wisconsin were grouped as District No. 14 with headquarters at St. Paul, Minn., under S. B. Qvale as acting administrator. South Dakota was formerly in district 15.

Iowa, Illinois and Eastern Wisconsin—District No. 13—were placed under Acting Administrator E. C. Yellowly at Chicago. Iowa heretofore was grouped with South Dakota and Nebraska.

Prohibition Commissioner Doran, who announced the changes, said all administrators, with the exception of Wark, were acting until permanent appointments were made under civil service.

He indicated several administrators would be dismissed and that there would be a large number of changes of assistants and deputies. The changes today, he said, were made so states with similar problems would be grouped together.

MAYOR BOSSY GILLIS TO VISIT MAYOR BILL THOMPSON OF CHICAGO

Newburyport, Mass., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Mayor Bossy Gillis made plans today to visit the man he rated as the third best mayor in the United States.

"My next trip's gonna be to Chicago to meet Bill Thompson," the red haired Newburyport executive said after disclosing he had thoroughly enjoyed his visit to New York and his chats with Mayor Jimmy Walker, his second best mayor.

But as the mayor looked forward with pleasure to the visit to Chicago, he looked back at his visit to New York with a grimace. He said New York newspapermen did not treat him fairly.

"Did they give me a break?" he queried. "Like hell they did. I was just a small town guy on Broadway—but they'd better watch me. They may think Jimmy Walker's got it all over Andrew J. Gillis, but I don't. Mind you Jimmy Walker's a good guy, but he has to take orders from the big boys."

"But I don't. I don't take orders from nobody. To hell with the big boys' is my motto and that's where I've got it all over Jimmy Walker."

CONDUCTOR SAVES MAN OVERCOME BY MONOXIDE GAS

Moorhead, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—With a locomotive moving slowly toward the prostrate body of A. E. Estherson, a potato inspector, William Nelson, a Great Northern railroad conductor leaped from the train and rescued the man.

Estherson was overcome by monoxide gas from a charcoal heater in a car of potatoes he was inspecting. He toppled off the car onto the track, directly in the path of a train.

Nelson saw Estherson collapse on the rails and after leaping from the moving train he ran ahead of it and performed the rescue. Estherson was not seriously affected by the gas.

REVOLUTION IN SOUTHERN RUSSIA GAINS CREDENCE

London, Feb. 1.—(UP)—The Daily News-Westminster Gazette's Constantinople correspondent said today that Turkish newspapers reported a revolution occurring in southern Russia. The report said the Soviet government was mobilizing large naval and military forces.

The British ambassador to Turkey was advised by Turkish authorities, according to the story, that the principal ports of Crimea have been closed by floating mines.

No confirmation of the report had been obtained yet.

Within the past few days there have been reports of revolutionary activities in Russia. They have been officially denied and apparently were without foundation.

Moscow, Feb. 1.—(UP)—The foreign office today denied rumors of a revolt in the Ukraine district, and ascribed them to the "usual desire on the part of the foreign press to picture the Soviet Union as a country of constant, if imaginary, revolts."

TOTAL TAX LEVIES OF STATE INCREASE

1927 LEVY PAYABLE IN 1928
HAS INCREASE OF OVER
$7,000,000

FIGURES OF STATE TAX COMMISSION COVER 85 OF 87 COUNTIES

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Total tax levies in Minnesota for 1927, payable in 1928, are $121,987,344, an increase of $7,256,431 over the previous year.

The figures as just compiled by the state tax commission are for 85 of the 87 counties in the state, the missing counties being Cass and Waseca, the tax abstracts of which have not yet been received. The figures from these two counties will not materially affect the totals according to J. G. Armon, chairman.

The total state tax levy is $9,830,239, as compared with $5,468,699 for 1926, an increase of $4,361,540. It was explained that the state tax levy is always higher in odd-numbered years because of deficiency and immediately available appropriations made by the legislature, which convenes each odd numbered year.

The levy for educational purposes is the highest of all, comprising approximately one third of the total. The 1927 levy for this purpose is $43,461,256, an increase of $61,219 over that of 1926.

The next largest levy is that under the classification for city and village purposes, exclusive of road and bridge levies, and amounts to $32,529,294, as compared with $32,309,118 the previous year.

Third in amount is the road and bridge levy, totaling $20,247,323 in 1927, as against $18,331,844 for 1926, an increase of $1,915,479.

For county purposes, exclusive of road and bridge levies, the 1927 total is $12,994,411, an increase of $844,919 over 1926.

The only classification showing a decrease in last year's levies is that for township purposes. The 1927 levy is $2,024,821, as compared with $2,171,722 for 1926, a decrease of $146,901.

The total assessed valuation of property in the state for tax purposes in 1927, according to the tax commission's figures for the 85 counties, is $1,925,931,530 as compared with $1,928,729,595 for 1926, a decrease of $2,798,065.

The total real estate valuation shows an increase for 1927 of $1,558,963, while the personal property valuation shows a decrease of $4,357,028 in 1927.

Because of the increase in the state tax levy the state tax rate for 1927 is 7.71 mills as compared to 5.4 mills in 1926.

GANGRENE SETS IN AND MISS SADIE HOLLAND'S LEGS ARE AMPUTATED

Chicago, Feb. 1.—(UP)—Miss Sadie Holland of Detroit, who recently underwent an operation to have her bow legs straightened, was reported in a critical condition today after both her legs had been amputated.

Gangrene set in, making the amputation necessary, it is said.

Joseph I. Holland, the girl's brother, said Dr. Henry J. Schireson, plastic surgeon, performed the original operation, promising the young woman that it would make her legs straight.

After the operation, Dr. William Van Doren, the Holland family physician, examined the girl. Later he called Dr. Paul Magnuson, surgeon, who performed the amputations. Benjamin Ehrlich, attorney for Schireson, said today that Dr. Schireson and Dr. S. D. Zaph performed the original operation on Miss Holland.

The operation was not a dangerous one, and Miss Holland was recovering, he said. Then, over the protest of Dr. Schireson, Ehrlich said, Dr. Van Doren ordered Miss Holland removed from the Chicago Osteopathic hospital, where the operation had been performed, to another hospital.

Miss Holland signed a statement, he said, relieving Dr. Schireson and Dr. Zaph of responsibility for anything that might happen after the removal. Ehrlich said Dr. Schireson warned that the transfer in cold weather might be dangerous.

Examinations when Miss Holland left the hospital showed that she was in good condition, Ehrlich said. Dr. Schireson was out of the city today, and Dr. Zaph refused to comment on the case.

Dr. Schireson has been prominent in the plastic surgery field for some time. He sued Lady Diana Manners at one time for fees he alleged were due for work performed on her face while she was playing in "The Miracle" here. He also was credited with an operation to remove fat from the legs of Peaches Browning.

SUBMARINE S-3 EXPECTED AT GUANTANAMO BAY

Washington, Feb. 1.—(UP)—The Submarine S-3 is expected to reach Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, by nightfall.

Not until then will the world learn the complete story of her "loss" and finding again. A laconic message to the navy department from Admiral Brumby, commander of the force, said she had been picked up by other submarines, but failed to give details. It was believed at the department, however, that a temporarily disabled radio accounted for the S-3's three-day silence.

MIDSHIPMAN, WORRIED OVER HIS STUDIES, COMMITTS SUICIDE

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Fear that his physical condition might interfere with scholastic standings today was believed responsible for the suicide of Midshipman Gordon Harrington Kellogg, 22, of Medina, O., a student at the United States naval academy.

Kellogg climbed to the stack of the power house and leaped 150 feet to the concrete base.

ENGINEMEN AND FIREMEN GET WAGE INCREASE

GRANTED BY FEDERAL MEDIATION BOARD, APPROVED BY JUDGE

JUDGE CARPENTER DISMISSES PROTESTS OF THE RAILROADS

Chicago, Feb. 1.—(UP)—Federal Judge George A. Carpenter today approved the 30 to 35 per cent a day wage increase granted enginemen and firemen of western roads by a federal mediation board.

Carpenter dismissed protests of the railroads and signed the award. The award will not become effective for 10 days pending an appeal by the roads, but if no appeal is filed, or if higher courts uphold Judge Carpenter, the award will be retroactive to today.

About 45,000 employees of 54 roads will receive wage increases. The total increase involved is estimated at $4,000,000 a year.

ENRAGED AT LOSS OF SLOT MACHINE

ST. PAUL MAN THREATENS TO SHOOT POLICEMAN ON BEAT

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Enraged at the loss of a slot machine Joe Kot, proprietor of a soft drink parlor threatened to shoot a policeman who discovered the theft. Kot was arrested only after the policeman, H. Omdt knocked him unconscious, and took from him a revolver.

Omdt discovered the door of Kot's parlor opened early today. He awoke Kot and both looked into the place. Omdt, not aware that anything was missing said, "well, I guess I'll return to my beat."

"Just a minute," Kot said. "Don't be in such a hurry."

Surprised, Omdt turned to find that Kot had drawn a revolver from behind the counter.

"You haven't long to live," Kot told the officer. "You stole my slot machine."

Omdt tried to argue with the enraged proprietor but the latter held him at bay, threatening continually to shoot.

Making a quick dive, the policeman grasped the gun and together the men went to the floor in a desperate battle.

It was only after Kot had been knocked unconscious that the policeman got the gun.

Charges of assault with a deadly weapon will be lodged against Kot.

FRENCH-AMERICAN ANTI-WAR PACT TO BE SIGNED SOON

Paris, Feb. 1.—(UP)—A French-American anti-war treaty will be signed at Washington not later than February 6, a high French source told the United Press today after a conference between United States Ambassador Myron T. Herrick and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand.

All details of the treaty had been settled, the informant said.

FATHER ALSO TO BE CALLED BY DEFENSE

DEPOSITIONS PREVIOUSLY READ TO SHOW DEFENDANT IS INSANE

MOTHER OF BOY PICTURED AS MORBID WOMAN ONCE IN INSANE ASYLUM

By DAN CAMPBELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Los Angeles, Feb. 1.—(UP)—On the 20th anniversary of his birth, Edward Hickman today was to hear his mother testify in the battle to keep him from the gallows.

The mother, Mrs. Eva Hickman, was to be called to the stand after defense attorneys concluded their reading of depositions designed to show Hickman insane.

The defense had only 12 more depositions to read and it was expected they would be completed by early afternoon. Previous depositions sought to prove Hickman insane, but today's statements were to show "tender qualities" exhibited by the "Fox."

Attorney Richard Cantillon, of defense counsel, said Mrs. Hickman probably would testify immediately after the reading of depositions.

The defense also indicated it would call Thomas Hickman, father of Edward.

When Mrs. Hickman ascends the stand, the jury already will have a complete background of her life, gained from the depositions which the defense has read.

The depositions have pictured a morbid, despondent woman of maniacal tendencies, who was once confined in an insane asylum. Mrs. Hickman was expected to lay bare the reasons for her insanity and to tell frankly of the "queer turns" her mind has taken during her life.

Court Room, Los Angeles, Feb. 1.—(UP)—Twenty years from the day she gave birth to a son destined to commit one of the most brutal murders in the history of the west, Mrs. Eva Hickman was scheduled today to take the witness stand in an effort to save the son from hanging.

The foundation of the insanity defense of William Edward Hickman on trial for the murder of Marion Parker was being rapidly concluded with reading of additional depositions from acquaintances of the young slayer in Kansas, Arkansas and Missouri.

The Parker trial was delayed some 15 minutes today to permit Hickman and his counsel to appear before Judge Carlos Hardy, before whom he was to have gone to trial on another murder charge today with his former bandit pal, Welby Hunt.

Hickman and Hunt are jointly indicted on a murder charge for the slaying of Ivy Thoms, a druggist, during a holdup on Christmas eve of 1926.

"The Fox" and his 16-year-old accomplice stood unsmiling as Hickman's attorney made a formal motion to have the trial postponed until the conclusion of the Parker case.

Judge Hardy granted the request and set the date of trial for February 15.

Courtroom, Los Angeles, Feb. 1.—(UP)—William Edward Hickman's own story of the butchery of little Marion Parker may be introduced by his attorneys as evidence in their fight in superior court here to save his life, it was indicated today.

Jerome Walsh, chief defense attorney, went over the document before the opening of today's session and was understood practically to have reached a decision to use it as a part of the defense evidence.

TWO DOGS FLAG TRAIN AND SAVE UNCONSCIOUS MASTER

West Julian, Ia., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Two dogs flagged a train near here and saved the life of their unconscious master.

G. F. Clark, farmer, fell unconscious as he started across a railroad track. His two dogs, "Treve" and "Freckles", were with him.

Treve sat down by the side of his master and began to bark. Freckles ran up the track toward an approaching train.

The fireman, George Craft, saw him coming, and looking ahead saw Treve tugging at a man's body. The engineer stopped the train. As the engine slowed, Freckles ran alongside barking and when it stopped he dashed in front of it and lay down.

Clark was put on the train and brought here, with the dogs as escort. His condition was not serious, physicians said.

EUROPE SHOWS ANEMIC TRACES SAYS SPENCER

CLAIMS IT REQUIRES MOST SYMPATHETIC DIAGNOSIS

SPEAKER AT ST. PAUL IS PROFESSOR IN OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Europe is suffering from no virulent disease such as the imperialism of the Hohenzollern or the Ruhr adventures of a Poincare, yet in it there are certain symptoms of anemic conditions which require sympathetic diagnosis, Henry R. Spencer, told St. Paulites.

Spencer is head of the Department of Political Science, Ohio state university. He addressed a meeting of the St. Paul chapter of the Foreign Policy Association here.

James McDonald, New York, chairman of the National Board of the Foreign Policy Association, also a speaker, outlined the nationalistic ambitions of Italy, the international aims of communist Russia and the dangers of dictators.

"A hopeful procedure for the treatment of these anemic conditions is the League of Nations," Spencer declared. "It's practically been demonstrated; it's a working concern."

"But it is not the danger spots, however, that should interest us, because no nation can afford another war except ourselves. There are symptoms of growing pains in Europe, but it is my hope that these are localizing and will make for a healthier mode of national life," he said.

Turning to dictatorships, Spencer declared that "when a nation selects a dictator it abdicates the responsibility of self government."

"A myth arises and is cultivated about a man who saved the nation. He is consequently accorded unquestioning, unreasoning forced obedience. Opinion is suppressed on the platform and in the press," he said.

"That is Italy today. Italy and communist Russia are almost identical. Any criticism from within is not only treason, it is treason and heresy," Spencer asserted.

MILL CITY GROCER ROBBED OF $160

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Samuel Satz, grocer, was held up by a bandit here last night and robbed of $160, the receipts for Monday at his store.

the most unusual ever attempted in a murder trial, was considered in the belief that the confession would help prove Hickman's plea of insanity.

Only an insane and distorted mind would have been capable of perpetrating a crime like that committed by Hickman in murdering the little girl and dismembering her body, the defense attorneys were said to believe.

IS GUEST OF GOV. EVANS DURING HIS STAY

WHOLE POPULATION OF ISLAND IS VIEING TO PAY HIM HONORS

STREETS OF ST. THOMAS GAYLY DECORATED IN HONOR OF AVIATOR

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, Feb. 1.—(UP)—Back on United States territory, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was a guest today at the residence of Governor Waldo Evans while the entire, if small, population of the island united to do him honor.

The American flyer's program included a luncheon this afternoon, and a short visit to the golf course where his Spirit of St. Louis airplane landed yesterday.

Streets here in St. Thomas—formerly called Charlotte Amalie—were decorated gaily today in Lindbergh's honor, and the flying ambassador was cheered heartily whenever he appeared.

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, Feb. 1.—(UP)—The people of the Virgin Islands, a United States possession today feted one of the United States' best known and loved citizens, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The flying good-will ambassador made a typical Lindbergh flight here from Maracaay, Venezuela, yesterday, covering the more than 1,000 miles of airway in scheduled flying time. He dropped out of a clouded sky just before dusk to receive the acclaim of thousands.

He took off from Venezuela at 7:24 a. m. from then on it was just a steady swing, somewhat in the form of an arc, that brought Lindbergh over the lesser Antilles chain and thence to the Virgin Islands.

Then he dropped here, circled the city, swung to the landing field and dropped down to an easy landing.

He was guest at a banquet last night and was to be entertained by government officials at a luncheon today. His plans called for a rest here today and then a flight to Porto Rico Thursday.

'TRIXIE' SAVES HER MISTRESS

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—No amount of money could buy "Trixie" a pet dog from her owner, Mrs. Peter Valento, she said today. For Mrs. Valento declares that had it not been for the dog, she probably would have been dead today.

When she left her home in the snowstorm late yesterday, Mrs. Valento forgot her key to the house. Upon her return she tried to enter the home through a cellar window. Her body lodged in the window frame, with her head and hands exposed to the elements.

"Trixie" had accompanied her mistress. Evidently the dog realized Mrs. Valento's plight for she left the scene of the woman's struggle to get through the frame, and after being gone for several minutes, returned with a neighbor. Much pushing and pulling brought Mrs. Valento, in tears, from her prison.

And "Trixie" as reward, had a nice bit of steak for supper. Today she is priceless.

700,000 AUTOMOBILES TO BE REGISTERED IN 1928 IN STATE

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—There is an automobile for every four persons in the state of Minnesota in possession of residents.

Figures on automobile license payments, compiled by Mike Holm, secretary of state, for last year, showed that average.

Fees on licenses in 1927 totaled $10,192,009, an increase over the previous year of $21,441. It was announced Tuesday.

The registration this year will total 700,000 automobiles, the secretary of state said. The 1927 registration totaled 654,561 automobiles.

BEAT

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Enraged at the loss of a slot machine Joe Kot, proprietor of a soft drink parlor threatened to shoot a policeman who discovered the theft. Kot was arrested only after the policeman, H. Omotd knocked him unconscious, and took from him a revolver.

Omotd discovered the door of Kot's parlor opened early today. He awoke Kot and both looked into the place. Omotd, not aware that anything was missing, said, "well, I guess I'll return to my beat."

"Just a minute", Kot said. "Don't be in such a hurry."

Surprised, Omotd turned to find that Kot had drawn a revolver from behind the counter.

"You haven't long to live," Kot told the officer. "You stole my slot machine."

Omotd tried to argue with the enraged proprietor but the latter held him at bay, threatening continually to shoot.

Making a quick dive, the policeman grasped the gun and together the men went to the floor in a desperate battle.

It was only after Kot had been knocked unconscious that the policeman got the gun.

Charges of assault with a deadly weapon will be lodged against Kot.

FRENCH-AMERICAN ANTI-WAR PACT TO BE SIGNED SOON

Paris, Feb. 1.—(UP)—A French-American anti-war treaty will be signed at Washington not later than February 6, a high French source told the United Press today after a conference between United States Ambassador Myron T. Herrick and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand.

All details of the treaty had been settled, the informant said.

FATHER ALSO TO BE CALLED BY DEFENSE

DEPOSITIONS PREVIOUSLY READ

INSANE

MOTHER OF BOY PICTURED AS MORBID WOMAN ONCE IN INSANE ASYLUM

By DAN CAMPBELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Los Angeles, Feb. 1.—(UP)—On the 20th anniversary of his birth, Edward Hickman today was to hear his mother testify in the battle to keep him from the gallows.

The mother, Mrs. Eva Hickman, was to be called to the stand after defense attorneys concluded their reading of depositions designed to show Hickman insane.

The defense had only 12 more depositions to read and it was expected they would be completed by early afternoon. Previous depositions sought to prove Hickman insane, but today's statements were to show "tender qualities" exhibited by the "Fox."

Attorney Richard Cantillon, of defense counsel, said Mrs. Hickman probably would testify immediately after the reading of depositions.

The defense also indicated it would call Thomas Hickman, father of Edward.

When Mrs. Hickman ascends the stand, the jury already will have a complete background of her life, gained from the depositions which the defense has read.

The depositions have pictured a morbid, despondent woman of maniacal tendencies, who was once confined in an insane asylum. Mrs. Hickman was expected to lay bare the reasons for her insanity and to tell frankly of the "queer turns" her mind has taken during her life.

Court Room, Los Angeles, Feb. 1.—(UP)—Twenty years from the day she gave birth to a son destined to commit one of the most brutal murders in the history of the west, Mrs. Eva Hickman was scheduled today to take the witness stand in an effort to save the son from hanging.

The foundation of the insanity defense of William Edward Hickman on trial for the murder of Marion Parker was being rapidly concluded with reading of additional depositions from acquaintances of the young slayer in Kansas, Arkansas and Missouri.

The Parker trial was delayed some 15 minutes today to permit Hickman and his counsel to appear before Judge Carlos Hardy, before whom he was to have gone to trial on another murder charge today with his former bandit pal, Welby Hunt.

Hickman and Hunt are jointly indicted on a murder charge for the slaying of Ivy Thoms, a druggist, during a holdup on Christmas eve of 1926.

"The Fox" and his 16-year-old accomplice stood unsmiling as Hickman's attorney made a formal motion to have the trial postponed until the conclusion of the Parker case.

Judge Hardy granted the request and set the date of trial for February 15.

Courtroom, Los Angeles, Feb. 1.—(UP)—William Edward Hickman's own story of the butchery of little Marion Parker may be introduced by his attorneys as evidence in their fight in superior court here to save his life, it was indicated today.

Jerome Walsh, chief defense attorney, went over the document before the opening of today's session and was understood practically to have reached a decision to use it as a part of the defense evidence.

TWO DOGS FLAG TRAIN AND SAVE UNCONSCIOUS MASTER

West Julian, Ia., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Two dogs flagged a train near here and saved the life of their unconscious master.

G. F. Clark, farmer, fell unconscious as he started across a railroad track. His two dogs, "Treve" and "Freckles", were with him.

Treve sat down by the side of his master and began to bark. Freckles ran up the track toward an approaching train.

The fireman, George Craft, saw him coming, and looking ahead saw Treve tugging at a man's body. The engineer stopped the train. As the engine slowed, Freckles ran alongside barking and when it stopped he dashed in front of it and lay down.

Clark was put on the train and brought here, with the dogs as escort. His condition was not serious, physicians said.

EUROPE SHOWS ANEMIC TRACES SAYS SPENCER

CLAIMS IT REQUIRES MOST SYM-PATHETIC DIAGNOS-
SIS

SPEAKER AT ST. PAUL IS PRO-FESSOR IN OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Europe is suffering from no virulent disease such as the imperialism of the Hohenzollern or the Ruhr adventures of a Poincare, yet in it there are certain symptoms of anemic conditions which require sympathetic diagnosis, Henry R. Spencer, told St. Paulites.

Spencer is head of the Department of Political Science, Ohio state university. He addressed a meeting of the St. Paul chapter of the Foreign Policy Association here.

James McDonald, New York, chairman of the National Board of the Foreign Policy Association, also a speaker, outlined the nationalistic ambitions of Italy, the international aims of communist Russia and the dangers of dictators.

"A hopeful procedure for the treatment of these anemic conditions is the League of Nations," Spencer declared. "Its practicality has been demonstrated; it is a working concern."

"But it is not the danger spots, however, that should interest us, because no nation can afford another war except ourselves. There are symptoms of growing pains in Europe, but it is my hope that these are localizing and will make for a healthier mode of national life," he said.

Turning to dictatorships, Spencer declared that "when a nation selects a dictator it abdicates the responsibility of self government."

"A myth arises and is cultivated about a man who saved the nation. He is consequently accorded unquestioning, unreasoning forced obedience. Opinion is suppressed on the platform and in the press," he said.

"That is Italy today. Italy and communist Russia are almost identical. Any criticism from within is not only treason, it is treason and heresy," Spencer asserted.

MILL CITY GROCER ROBBED OF $160

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Samuel Satz, grocer, was held up by a bandit here last night and robbed of $160, the receipts for Monday at his store.

The most unusual ever attempted in a murder trial, was considered in the belief that the confession would help prove Hickman's plea of insanity.

Only an insane and distorted mind would have been capable of perpetrating a crime like that committed by Hickman in murdering the little girl and dismembering her body, the defense attorneys were said to believe.

STREETS OF ST. THOMAS GAYLY DECORATED IN HONOR OF AVIATOR

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, Feb. 1.—(UP)—Back on United States territory, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was a guest today at the residence of Governor Waldo Evans while the entire, if small, population of the island united to do him honor.

The American flyer's program included a luncheon this afternoon, and a short visit to the golf course where his Spirit of St. Louis airplane landed yesterday.

Streets here in St. Thomas—formerly called Charlotte Amalie—were decorated gaily today in Lindbergh's honor, and the flying ambassador was cheered heartily whenever he appeared.

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, Feb. 1.—(UP)—The people of the Virgin Islands, a United States possession today feted one of the United States' best known and loved citizens, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The flying good-will ambassador made a typical Lindbergh flight here from Maracay, Venezuela, yesterday, covering the more than 1,000 miles of airway in scheduled flying time. He dropped out of a clouded sky just before dusk to receive the acclaim of thousands.

He took off from Venezuela at 7:24 a. m. from then on it was just a steady swing, somewhat in the form of an arc, that brought Lindbergh over the lesser Antilles chain and thence to the Virgin Islands.

When he dropped here, circled the city, swung to the landing field and dropped down to an easy landing.

He was guest at a banquet last night and was to be entertained by government officials at a luncheon today. His plans called for a rest here today and then a flight to Porto Rico Thursday.

'TRIXIE' SAVES HER MISTRESS

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—No amount of money could buy "Trixie" a pet dog from her owner, Mrs. Peter Valento, she said today. For Mrs. Valento declares that had it not been for the dog, she probably would have been dead today.

When she left her home in the snowstorm late yesterday, Mrs. Valento forgot her key to the house. Upon her return she tried to enter the home through a cellar window. Her body lodged in the window frame, with her head and hands exposed to the elements.

"Trixie" had accompanied her mistress. Evidently the dog realized Mrs. Valento's plight for she left the scene of the woman's struggle to get through the frame, and after being gone for several minutes, returned with a neighbor. Much pushing and pulling brought Mrs. Valento, in tears, from her prison.

And "Trixie" as reward, had a nice bit of steak for supper. Today she is priceless.

700,000 AUTOMOBILES TO BE REGISTERED IN 1928 IN STATE

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—There is an automobile for every four persons in the state of Minnesota in possession of residents.

Figures on automobile license payments, compiled by Mike Holm, secretary of state, for last year, showed that average.

Fees on licenses in 1927 totaled $10,192,009, an increase over the previous year of $21,441. It was announced Tuesday.

The registration this year will total 700,000 automobiles, the secretary of state said. The 1927 registration totalled 654,561 automobiles.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Purdy returned this afternoon from an extended visit at their old home in Canada. They report having had a delightful time.

A bill has been introduced in the house of representatives by Hon. Ambrose Tighe appropriating $8,000 for a new bridge to be constructed across the Mississippi river north of Deerwood, at a point to be determined later by the board of county commissioners.

The Wadena Pioneer-Journal has discarded its patent inside and is now an all home print paper which is an improvement.

It will be remembered that M. K. Swartz and his associates appeared before the council and stated that they proposed putting in a street car line in this city, providing water power to operate the same could be secured from the city. The city has not enough power to furnish the proposed company under the present lease and it is the desire of the city fathers to put themselves in shape so they can grant the request of Mr. Swartz.

REV. EVERSZ IN HISTORIC LECTURE

Pictures Man of Strong Character in Talk on Gustavus Adolphus

AT SWEDISH BETHANY CHURCH

Holds Interest of Large Audience From Start to Finish

Rev. Morris L. Eversz held the attention of the large audience at the Swedish Bethany church Sunday evening from start to finish while he delivered a lecture on Gustavus Adolphus, a supposedly dry subject which he made very interesting.

As an introduction to his subject he briefly traced the history of the reigning monarchs of Sweden from Gustav Johanson, the king who made the first attempts to establish religious freedom, through the different struggles before Gustavus Adolphus, the sixth king of Sweden ascended to the throne.

King Charles, father of Gustavus, employed the best teachers possible to teach the young boy in history, grammar, military affairs, etc., but himself undertook the task of giving him his religious training which enabled him to build a strong character for his future life. Gustavus Adolphus was a devout Christian and always called on Almighty God for guidance before entering battle in the many conflicts engaged in while establishing religious freedom in Europe.

Rev. Eversz artfully pictured a man of strong character and high ideals in such a way that the large part of the audience composed of young people of school age were able to get a lesson that will undoubtedly remain in their minds and assist them in their study of history and to more fully appreciate the struggles of their forefathers in bringing them to the present stage of Christianity and civilization.

The Aitkin high school ladies' basketball team passed through the city this afternoon enroute to Little Falls where they will play this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Purdy returned this afternoon from an extended visit at their old home in Canada. They report having had a delightful time.

A bill has been introduced in the house of representatives by Hon. Ambrose Tighe appropriating $8,000 for a new bridge to be constructed across the Mississippi river north of Deerwood, at a point to be determined later by the board of county commissioners.

The Wadena Pioneer-Journal has discarded its patent inside and is now an all home print paper which is an improvement.

It will be remembered that M. K. Swartz and his associates appeared before the council and stated that they proposed putting in a street car line in this city, providing water power to operate the same could be secured from the city. The city has not enough power to furnish the proposed company under the present lease and it is the desire of the city fathers to put themselves in shape so they can grant the request of Mr. Swartz.

In northern Minnesota the snow is about the right depth for rapid work, says the Mississippi Lumberman. Last year the Minnesota & International road hauled from points north of Brainerd and Minneapolis, 157,000,000 feet.

REV. EVERSZ IN HISTORIC LECTURE

Pictures Man of Strong Character in Talk on Gustavus Adolphus

AT SWEDISH BETHANY CHURCH

Holds Interest of Large Audience From Start to Finish

Rev. Morris L. Eversz held the attention of the large audience at the Swedish Bethany church Sunday evening from start to finish while he delivered a lecture on Gustavus Adolphus, a supposedly dry subject which he made very interesting.

As an introduction to his subject he briefly traced the history of the reigning monarchs of Sweden from Gustav Johanson, the king who made the first attempts to establish religious freedom, through the different struggles before Gustavus Adolphus, the sixth king of Sweden ascended to the throne.

King Charles, father of Gustavus, employed the best teachers possible to teach the young boy in history, grammar, military affairs, etc., but himself undertook the task of giving him his religious training which enabled him to build a strong character for his future life. Gustavus Adolphus was a devout Christian and always called on Almighty God for guidance before entering battle in the many conflicts engaged in while establishing religious freedom in Europe.

Rev. Eversz artfully pictured a man of strong character and high ideals in such a way that the large part of the audience composed of young people of school age were able to get a lesson that will undoubtedly remain in their minds and assist them in their study of history and to more fully appreciate the struggles of their forefathers in bringing them to the present stage of Christianity and civilization.

LEAGUE TUNES IN ON W.R.C. PROGRAM

Women Voters Gather at Home of Mrs. A. M. Opsahl; New President in Chair

FLOOD CONTROL VOICED

Spillways and Dikes Seem Most Feasible Solution, Army
Engineers State

The League of Women Voters held their first meeting with their new chairman, Mrs. Ben Armstrong in the chair on Tuesday afternoon and evening at the home of Mrs. A. M. Opsahl. At the brief business meeting before the radio talks, it was decided to cut the membership fee to fifty cents and have one board meeting and one meeting open to all members each month, with a buffet luncheon between radio talks. The program at the general meeting was to be supplemented by a report from a committee chairman covering the local, state, and national work of her committee.

Promptly at 4:25 P. M. the radio talk from the state committee, over WCCO came in and was made the next order of business. These dialogues might be called congressional gossip, as they are so informal and include other happenings in congress besides an enumeration of the bills under consideration by that body. For instance, they began on Tuesday with a description of the vaudeville act staged on the floor of the senate by Hefflin, of Alabama, which amused the republicans and amazed his own party members, bringing from them a sharp rebuke for his attempt to arouse religious prejudice. It also touched up on the quarrel over the investigation of the S-4 disaster, as to whether it should be under commission appointed by the president, or under a congressional committee.

Somewhat gossipy, in nature, also, was the information that "it was said" that the new revenue bill would not be reported out of committee in the senate until after March 15, so that the great reductions in corporation taxes could not become effective this year. The charge that the senate's action in refusing to seat senator-elect Smith, of Illinois was unconstitutional was clearly explained and reference was made to the move to investigate public service corporations, which both the corporations and the party in power are trying to block.

The reason was given for the clearing of congressional decks for action on the Jones Bill whenever Senator Jones sees fit to introduce it. Unless action on this bill is taken promptly, the government ships will all be sold at prices far below cost. Many of these have already been disposed of at junk prices. Senator Jones contends that if the nation can spend two and a half billion dollars during the next twenty years to build up a navy they ought to appropriate a few million toward rehabilitating these ships so that they may form the nucleus of a merchant marine and be ready to be converted into auxiliary ships during war.

After the radio dialogues, Mrs. Armstrong reported on the radio program of the week previous which concerned the history of our Merchant Marine. A delicious menu of hot biscuit with creamed chicken and peas, pickles, salad, coffee, ice cream and cake was then served and was finished in time to listen to the broadcasting of the program of the National League from WRC Washington.

On this program, the first speaker was Brigadier-General Edgar Jadwin, chief of engineers of the U. S. army. His conclusions were that the control of the Mississippi by means of levees had proved a failure, as seventeen government levees and 126 of those built by the states affected had proved inadequate during the 1927 flood. The reservoir plan he seemed to think would be too expensive and take too long to work out. The combination of spillways and dikes seemed to him the most feasible, and he believed that the work should be done by the army engineers, and that the protected states should pay twenty percent of the bill.

The next speaker, ex-Governor John M. Parker, of Louisiana, said that the southern states had already paid more than twenty percent of the contemplated cost of the proposed flood control program for protection that had proved to be no protection. He declared that they had borrowed up to the limit of their legal ability and simply could not bear any of the expense of this new program. He declared that it was a national, not a sectional problem, and that the southern states should not suffer both from floods due to the melting of northern snows and from the cost of keeping these raging waters confined.

The third speaker, Colonel Randolph, one of the country's leading construction engineers, agreed with ex-Governor Parker that the entire cost should be born by the federal government and he agreed, in general, with Brigadier-General Jadwin regarding the form of flood control, but he thought that the best engineers in the country should undertake this task, whether in the army or out of it, and that it should be undertaken speedily.

After some discussion of the whole subject of flood control, the luncheon tables were converted into card tables and those who wished tarried for a social evening. Both the chairman, Mrs. J. A. Batchelder and the refreshment committee, consisting of Miss Mary Walsh and Mesdames Lowey and Weber, were heartily congratulated.

CONTINENTAL TRADING COM-

TIGATED

Washington, Feb. 1.—(UP)—The senate Teapot Dome committee gathered today more strange details of the financial operations of oil men who diverted $3,000,000 to the mysterious Continental Trading Company of Canada for a purpose yet undetermined.

A. O. Carlson, treasurer of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co., admitted he signed a contract to buy $1.50-a-barrel oil from the Continental at $1.75 a barrel because his superiors, Harry Sinclair and Robert W. Stewart, had signed—although he himself knew nothing of the contract.

E. G. Seubert, president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, revealed that Stewart had negotiated the Continental contract on his own authority and the board accepted the contract on Stewart's recommendations alone.

Former Senator Charles Thomas of Colorado, told how the contract was negotiated in the New York hotel apartment of H. M. Blackmer, missing oil witness, when Sinclair, Stewart, James E. O'Neil, also missing, and others were present.

Stewart, recently returned from Cuba, sat at the hearing and listened to the evidence. He will be asked to tell his story tomorrow.

BRUNETTES FAR AHEAD OF BLONDES IN LOVE MAKING

New York, Feb. 1.—(UP)—Brunettes, science has found, are so far ahead of their blonde sisters in the art of love making there is little room for comparison.

The new contribution to science was made possible when six Broadway chorus girls, under the guidance of psychology professors of Columbia university, sat on the front row of a moving picture house last night, with elaborate emotion-recording apparatus attached to their glorified persons, and watched John Gilbert make love to Greta Garbo in the films.

Three blondes and three brunettes laid their emotions upon the altar of science with complete willingness while Dr. William M. Marston, lecturer in psychology at America's largest university, acted as high official and made charts and graphs to settle the question of love making supremacy.

Dr. Marston, with several assisting scientists from the university, brought from his laboratory two instruments—the pneumograph and the sphygmometer—which could detect flutterings of the heart, and pulse. The pneumograph, Dr. Marston explained, recorded irregularities in breathing. The sphygmometer betrayed feverish pulse beats. The brunettes registered the greater emotions, Dr. Marston declared.

GASOLINE COST CITY OF MINNEAPOLIS ABOUT 10c A GALLON

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Gasoline cost slightly more than 10 cents a gallon here, and that cheap price included the state tax of 2 cents.

Adams declared Hoover would have the support of at least half of Iowa's delegates, though Hoover supporters have shown little activity in that state.

Mrs. Preston Says She Has Proved the Value of Father John's Medicine

Graduate Nurse Has Used It For Colds and to Build New Health and Strength

Mrs. Helen G. Preston, who conducts the Boston Employment Agency at 56 Melrose St., Boston, has proved the value of FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE, not only in her own family but in dealing with many of those who come to her for help and guidance. No praise could be stronger than her own letter, which is in part as follows:

"For eighteen years I have owned and managed an employment agency in Boston and many thousands have applied to me for positions. Some of these are in poor physical condition either through neglected colds or being generally run down as a result of laborious work or worry or serious illness.

From my previous experience as a graduate nurse, I always recommend FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE to such persons and as a result many who are not strong enough to do hard work so built up their health and strength that I was able to place them without much difficulty. Mothers to whom I have recommended it report that their children gained weight and are stronger than ever before.

I learned of the merits of FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE through personal experience. I have always used it myself and it restored my son to health when he was in poor physical condition after his war service. This is why I so gladly recommend it to those who seek relief from colds or who need something to build up their failing strength. I have always found FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE the foremost medicine for colds and body building."

BRUNETTES FAR AHEAD OF BLONDES IN LOVE MAKING

New York, Feb. 1.—(UP)—Brunettes, science has found, are so far ahead of their blonde sisters in the art of love making there is little room for comparison.

The new contribution to science was made possible when six Broadway chorus girls, under the guidance of psychology professors of Columbia university, sat on the front row of a moving picture house last night, with elaborate emotion-recording apparatus attached to their glorified persons, and watched John Gilbert make love to Greta Garbo in the films.

Three blondes and three brunettes laid their emotions upon the altar of science with complete willingness while Dr. William M. Marston, lecturer in psychology at America's largest university, acted as high official and made charts and graphs to settle the question of love making supremacy.

Dr. Marston, with several assisting scientists from the university, brought from his laboratory two instruments—the pneumograph and the sphygmometer—which could detect flutterings of the heart, and pulse. The pneumograph, Dr. Marston explained, recorded irregularities in breathing. The sphygmometer betrayed feverish pulse beats.

The brunettes registered the greater emotions, Dr. Marston declared.

GASOLINE COST CITY OF MINNEAPOLIS ABOUT 10c A GALLON

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Gasoline cost slightly more than 10 cents a gallon here, and that cheap price included the state tax of 2 cents.

But the city of Minneapolis was the only purchaser able to avail itself of the low rate. Eight thousand gallons were purchased by the city for use by the water department.

PREDICTS NOMINATION OF HERBERT HOOVER ON FIRST BALLOT

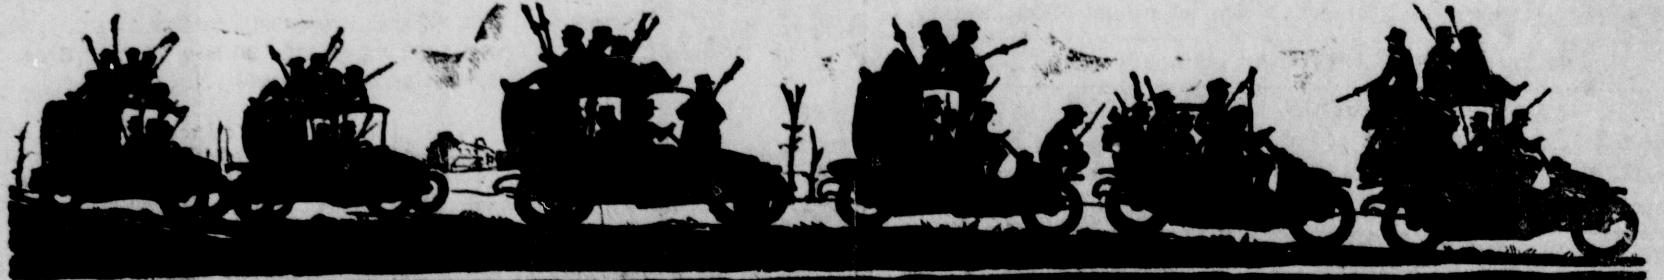

Washington, Feb. 1.—(UP)—Following a conference today with President Coolidge, John T. Adams, of Iowa, chairman of the republican national committee in 1920, predicted that Secretary of Commerce Hoover would be nominated for president on the first ballot at the republican convention at Kansas City next June.

Adams declared Hoover would have the support of at least half of Iowa's delegates, though Hoover supporters have shown little activity in that state.

Mrs. Preston Says She Has Proved the Value of Father John's Medicine

Graduate Nurse Has Used It For Colds and to Build New Health and Strength

Mrs. Helen G. Preston, who conducts the Boston Employment Agency at 56 Melrose St., Boston, has proved the value of FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE, not only in her own family but in dealing with many of those who come to her for help and guidance. No praise could be stronger than her own letter, which is in part as follows:

"For eighteen years I have owned and managed an employment agency in Boston and many thousands have applied to me for positions. Some of these are in poor physical condition either through neglected colds or being generally run down as a result of laborious work or worry or serious illness.

From my previous experience as a graduate nurse, I always recommend FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE to such persons and as a result many who are not strong enough to do hard work so built up their health and strength that I was able to place them without much difficulty. Mothers to whom I have recommended it report that their children gained weight and are stronger than ever before.

I learned of the merits of FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE through personal experience. I have always used it myself and it restored my son to health when he was in poor physical condition after his war service. This is why I so gladly recommend it to those who seek relief from colds or who need something to build up their failing strength. I have always found FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE the foremost medicine for colds and body building."

Guaranteed free from alcohol or nerve-deadening drugs.

OUR CHILD WELFARE BOARD

THE DISPATCH is informed by Charles F. Hall, Director of the Children's Bureau, State Board of Control, of facts concerning our Child Welfare Board.

The State Board of Control announces the appointment for the year 1928 of the Child Welfare Board for Crow Wing county. The members of this board are A. Frank Anderson, County Commissioner; Mrs. Irma C. Hartley, County Superintendent of Schools; Mrs. R. L. F. Hinckle, Crosby; Mrs. Robert Keyes, Deerwood; and Dr. M. P. Gerber, Brainerd. Miss Rebecca Cassell, of Brainerd, is the Executive Secretary.

County child welfare boards are appointed by the Board of Control in each county of the state where the board of county commissioners requests such an appointment. Under the law, the child welfare board is composed of a member of the county board of commissioners selected by the board, the county superintendent of schools and three persons appointed by the State Board of Control, two of whom must be women.

The 1917 legislature passed thirty-five laws that, with previous legislation, are known as the Children's Code. By this code responsibility was placed upon the State Board of Control to promote the enforcements of all laws for the protection of defective, illegitimate, dependent, neglected and delinquent children, to cooperate to this end with juvenile courts and all reputable child helping and child caring agencies of a public or private character, and to take the initiative in all matters involving the interests of such children where adequate provision therefor has not been made. Further, it is the duty of the board to safeguard the interests of the illegitimate child and take steps to establish his paternity and secure for him the care, support and education that he would be entitled to if born of lawful marriage. The board is empowered to license and supervise maternity hospitals, children's institutions, children's boarding homes and to act as the guardian of children committed to it by the courts. It is required to investigate all homes where children are placed for permanent care or adoption.

In the ten years since January 1, 1918, there has come to the attention of the board 12,959 cases of illegitimate children, 3,074 placements, 3,917 petitions for adoptions, 5,770 miscellaneous cases of which 300 are cases of guardianship, 3,691 commitments of feeble-minded persons and 908 inquiries. At the present time the Children's Bureau is working on 11,340 active cases. Annually it has licensed approximately 200 maternity hospitals, 28 children's institutions, 18 child placing agencies and since 1923, annually, it has passed upon the fitness of approximately 1,000 boarding homes.

This work is carried on for the Board of Control by its Children's Bureau. However, in order to secure local co-operation and support, the law provided, as hereinbefore stated, for the appointment of county child welfare boards. There are now eighty-one counties with child welfare boards in the state. The board in Crow Wing county was organized in 1918. During the ten years these laws have been in effect, the county child welfare boards have demonstrated their value and usefulness in the field of child welfare. While the state can set up standards, supervise and assist in the enforcement of law in the county, yet the actual solution of problems in the county must, in the last analysis, be solved by the community through its county child welfare board in co-operation with the county attorney, the probate judge, county commissioners and other public officials.

THE ICE-COATED WINDSHIELD

OF all the difficulties that confront the motorist in winter, few are more exasperating, disconcerting and dangerous than the ice-coated windshield. Recently a motorist, returning from St. Cloud, drove into a heavy fog which stretched from there to Crow Wing. He could not see but a few feet ahead of him and had to run slowly. To add to the general inconvenience, the fog condensed on the windshield and then froze and the windshield wiper was powerless to remove the accumulation. Stops were frequently made to wipe off the frozen cast with a cloth. Some relief was gained by dousing some gasoline on the windshield face, but that lasted until evaporation of gasoline again permitted ice to form. All this occurred in spite of the fact that the windshield and car windows are equipped with celluloid "storm windows."

There are several remedies, says the A. A. A. bulletin, and the motorist would spare himself many agonized hours if he acquainted himself with them, carries them in his car and applies them when needed.

"Alcohol, salt and glycerine are three substances that deal very effectively with the ice-coated windshield," the bulletin says. "The motorist who desires to avoid this problem, which is responsible for so many accidents, should carry one of the three along with him on all his winter motor journeys. All lend themselves very readily to being made additions to the tool kit."

"If salt is the substance one decides to have handy for the emergency of this character, it should be applied when the windshield begins to collect ice. This creates a brine solution that will not freeze. It will be necessary to apply additional salt from time to time as the original coating washes off, but handled properly, the remedy is one of the most effective."

"Glycerine rubbed on the windshield forms a film to which water, snow and ice will not cling. In some ways, it is the best of the substances that may be used as an ice preventive. Alcohol serves the same purpose in much the same way, although its lighter viscosity makes it less effective."

"In addition to this, the motorist should keep his windshield cleaner operating at the highest efficiency. The icy windshield has been tolerated too long."

PEOPLE talk of passing compulsory automobile insurance in this state. Why not make it compulsory for every man to protect his loved ones against poverty, if he is taken suddenly from them. Some hope the time will come when a man gets an application for marriage that he be compelled before given the license to show that he will protect his wife and children with insurance of some kind.

YOU have heard it said many times that "when you drop any insurance," then is when the unexpected happens. And the thing you had previously insured against, be it covered by either fire, life, liability, sickness or accident insurance, is bound to occur.

FREE mail delivery for Crosby now seems practically assured. Everything possible is being done to meet federal requirements for this great convenience.

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" is a Warner Bros. picture.

SYNOPSIS

Enrico de Solano y Vasquez, proud and romantic Spaniard, claims in 1776 for King Phillip of Spain the land surrounding San Francisco Bay. The Vasquez hacienda is erected on the broad acres of the hills overlooking the bay, and life moves along in the indolent and carefree manner of Old Spain. In 1848 two grandsons and their mother are the last of the proud line. The discovery of gold starts their peaceful existence. The eldest grandson is cruelly slain. His younger brother, Don Hernandez, now the sole male survivor of the Vasquez line, avenges his brother's death.

CHAPTER II—Continued

The game was held up to return the salute, and while an especially smitten male lingered longer than necessary over the salutation his opponent stealthily reached across, grabbed a couple of gold francs from the pot and drained the joint bottle of whiskey. The amorous one turned back to the game just in time to realize that he had been cheated. Out came his knife in an instant and he leaped up with a volley of curses. They clinched and staggered about the moving wagon until it hit a rut and threw them sprawling into the roadside. Still clinched they rolled around until contact with a deep mud puddle brought them to their senses. Yelling at the driver, they ran after the departing wagon amid the boisterous laughter and jeers of the painted girls.

All life was not like that during the Gold Rush, but unfortunately the Vasquezes' secluded existence prevented their knowing about the big and generous things that occurred. The romance of the California Gold Diggers was just as great in its way as the romance of Spain's own early explorations and settlement.

Fifty-eight years had passed since that memorable day of '48, which was the real beginning of San Francisco's prosperity. The city grew until it became the commercial capital of the west coast. The lawless days of the gold rush had become only slightly more circumspect, and at the beginning of the twentieth century it was a joyous pleasure loving city—the "Bohemia" of America. The Paris of the Pacific.

Gambling was rife and glittering dance halls flourished. The "Barbery Coast" and the fast "Cooktail Route" were the rendezvous of notables and the haunt of convivial characters. Blazing electric signs threw out their glow of welcome to all—rich and poor alike—the sinner and the saint. "Camp's," "Caesar's," "Neptune," "Midway," "Thalia," "Pup," "Fly Trap," and "The Poodle Dog," all paid their tribute in gold to a city government that was honeycombed with graft.

And just a few blocks away, yet separated by centuries of creed and custom, was Chinatown—the capital of California's fifty thousand Chinese population. All the lure of the East was there, with life that was good and much that was evil. Gambling rooms, opium dens, stores that were legitimately business, and houses whose business was illegitimate—all were centered in this section that outwardly was under civil jurisdiction but actually not at all governed by its laws and ordinances.

But even as San Francisco ever prospered and was well on the way to fulfill the brilliant destiny that was before her, the glory of the ancient Spanish founders grew dim. There indolent lives, the traditional love of comfort that had been handed down from one generation to another could not or would not compete with the active, growing civilization that was creeping upon them from the city below.

At the old Vasquez ranch high in the hills overlooking not only the encroaching city but the bay beyond and even the Farrallon Islands in the dim distance, the latest male descendant of the illustrious line held desperately to the ancestral acres.

Don Hernandez Vasquez, now in his seventies, had become a white-haired, dignified old aristocrat. He was still eloquent in manner with all the pride of the old Spanish nobility, and to his sorrow had seen the ranches and traditions of his old neighbors go, one by one, into the insatiable man of the city.

As he stood on the hillside, leaning on a gold-tipped cane, gazing at the vast acreage that spread before him, he shook his head sadly. The end was inevitable. The ranch was pitiful by comparison to its previous splendor. The land was still there, to be sure. But what land! Overrun with scrubby growth, uncultivated, wild, it lay, a tragic and silent monument of the past.

His wandering glance finally took in the famous old ranch house. That too was but a symbol of the decay that had been going on for more years than he liked to remember. The walls were cracked and half covered with moss. Here and there huge gaps showed in the masonry, and over it all the vines had run riot; around it the shrubbery had grown wild.

He walked slowly toward the house with a shrug of his aristocratic shoulders. What was to be must be! He was living in the present but not of it. As he neared the patio his expression suddenly changed into one of enthusiasm and anticipation. Here at least was something that pleased him mightily.

The clinking of castanets, beautifully timed to the soft thrumming of a guitar, reached his ear. His eyes sparkled and he leaned against the doorway watching the delightful scene that brought back a breath of the picturesque past.

Dolores Vasquez, the granddaughter of the ranch, was dancing. Her long full skirts cleared the flags of the patio and revealed daintily shod feet as she whirled. Her lovely head held proud and high nodded to the music's rhythm. Her beautiful eyes flashed merrily and her lips parted to smile at the faithful old peon who accompanied her on the guitar.

Leaning lazily on a rustic bench, sitting at Dolores through half closed eyes as he puffed carelessly on a cigarette, sat Don Luis, her very ardent admirer. Don Luis Costanzo was a twentieth century caballero dressed in the height of fashion, but nevertheless adhering as closely as possible to his ancestral influence. He sported a small, trimly waxed moustache which seemed a fitting climax to his high heeled boots, elaborate silk scarf and broad brimmed hat. Altogether he was exceedingly good to look upon—according to Don Luis.

"Why do you not smile at me, Dolores?" he objected as she continued to fling her entrancing smiles over her shoulder to the old peon who beamed on her with adoration as he strummed a gay Spanish air.

Dolores did not answer at once but continued dancing toward her grandfather, whom she had just noticed in the doorway.

As old Hernandez watched the charming picture his heart swelled with pride. Here was a Vasquez who was the fairest of them all. And as for Don Luis—well, was he not the son of an old friend and a fitting mate for his beloved Dolores? But then she had a way with her and even his experienced eyes could not determine anything but friendship for Don Luis in the actions of his granddaughter; he wanted to see for.

It was not always so. In his younger days the señoritas did not behave so calmly in the presence of a suitor. And once again his thoughts carried him back into the past. Back to the time when the very same patio echoed to the shouts and laughter of a dozen señoritas and as many dashing young Spaniards—some of them dancing as his own Dolores—others on the balcony singing and applauding.

At last it was hard to grow old—in poverty.

As Dolores finished the dance she blew a kiss from her dainty fingertips and made a deep courtesy before him. Then as he continued to smile sadly she laid her hand consoingly on his arm and said, "Don't worry, dear—some day we shall live again in the glory that has gone."

Vasquez shook his head sadly. "No, my dear, the past is gone and the glory and fame of the Vasquez have gone with it."

She looked at him pityingly for a moment, then her face brightened with a happy idea. Laughing gaily, she pronounced before him, saying, "See! I shall always dance and make you think of the great fiesta you love to speak of—when you first met my grandmother." Wrapping her mantilla about her, she began an old fashioned Spanish dance.

New York's Experiment

With a Woman in

High Office Unhappy

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 1.—(UP)—New York State's first experiment with a woman in high office reached an unhappy climax today when Governor Al Smith decided that the evidence which has been accumulating for months against Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state, should be turned over to a grand jury.

Gov. Smith's decision was based on a special inquiry which had concluded that Mrs. Knapp's case should be reviewed by a grand jury with a view to indicting her for forgery, false audits and certifications, illegal removal of state records and grand larceny.

MERGER HEARING CLOSES AT ST. PAUL

COMES TO ABRUPT CLOSE TUESDAY. NEXT SESSION MONDAY AT TACOMA

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the proposed unification of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads was brought to an abrupt close late Tuesday, and principals in the merger session departed early today for Tacoma, Wash., where the sessions will be resumed Monday.

The hearing here was shortened when several intervenors failed to appear, and when St. Paul's objection to the merger was presented by one witness, Mayor Hodgson.

Only one of the short lines appeared to object to the merger. This was the Minneapolis & St. Louis road which through its receiver, demanded that it be included in any grouping of northwest carriers.

POLICE SAY CASHIER'S STORY IS ALL MYTH

Chicago, Feb. 1.—(UP)—Kidnaping-bands blamed by James Dillon, 23, bank teller, for the robbery of the Industrial State bank here Monday, were declared by police today to be myths invented by Dillon to explain a theft in which he participated.

Dillon, three other men and two women were arrested in connection with the $35,000 robbery. Police said $19,000 of the loot was recovered.

OUR CHILD WELFARE BOARD

THE DISPATCH is informed by Charles F. Hall, Director of the Children's Bureau, State Board of Control, of facts concerning our Child Welfare Board.

The State Board of Control announces the appointment for the year 1928 of the Child Welfare Board for Crow Wing county. The members of this board are A. Frank Anderson, County Commissioner; Mrs. Irma C. Hartley, County Superintendent of Schools; Mrs. R. L. F. Hinckle, Crosby; Mrs. Robert Keyes, Deerwood, and Dr. M. P. Gerber, Brainerd. Miss Rebecca Cassell, of Brainerd, is the Executive Secretary.

County child welfare boards are appointed by the Board of Control in each county of the state where the board of county commissioners requests such an appointment. Under the law, the child welfare board is composed of a member of the county board of commissioners selected by the board, the county superintendent of schools and three persons appointed by the State Board of Control, two of whom must be women.

The 1917 legislature passed thirty-five laws that, with previous legislation, are known as the Children's Code. By this code responsibility was placed upon the State Board of Control to promote the enforcements of all laws for the protection of defective, illegitimate, dependent, neglected and delinquent children, to co-operate to this end with juvenile courts and all reputable child helping and child caring agencies of a public or private character, and to take the initiative in all matters involving the interests of such children where adequate provision therefor has not been made. Further, it is the duty of the board to safeguard the interests of the illegitimate child and take steps to establish his paternity and secure for him the care, support and education that he would be entitled to if born of lawful marriage. The board is empowered to license and supervise maternity hospitals, children's institutions, children's boarding homes and to act as the guardian of children committed to it by the courts. It is required to investigate all homes where children are placed for permanent care or adoption.

In the ten years since January 1, 1918, there has come to the attention of the board 12,959 cases of illegitimate children, 3,074 placements, 3,917 petitions for adoptions, 5,770 miscellaneous cases of which 300 are cases of guardianship, 3,691 commitments of feeble-minded persons and 908 inquiries. At the present time the Children's Bureau is working on 11,340 active cases. Annually it has licensed approximately 200 maternity hospitals, 28 children's institutions, 18 child placing agencies and since 1923, annually, it has passed upon the fitness of approximately 1,000 boarding homes.

This work is carried on for the Board of Control by its Children's Bureau. However, in order to secure local co-operation and support, the law provided, as hereinbefore stated, for the appointment of county child welfare boards. There are now eighty-one counties with child welfare boards in the state. The board in Crow Wing county was organized in 1918. During the ten years these laws have been in effect, the county child welfare boards have demonstrated their value and usefulness in the field of child welfare. While the state can set up standards, supervise and assist in the enforcement of law in the county, yet the actual solution of problems in the county must, in the last analysis, be solved by the community through its county child welfare board in co-operation with the county attorney, the probate judge, county commissioners and other public officials.

THE ICE-COATED WINDSHIELD

OF all the difficulties that confront the motorist in winter, few are more exasperating, disconcerting and dangerous than the ice-coated windshield. Recently a motorist, returning from St. Cloud, drove into a heavy fog which stretched from there to Crow Wing. He could not see but a few feet ahead of him and had to run slowly. To add to the general inconvenience, the fog condensed on the windshield and then froze and the windshield wiper was powerless to remove the accumulation. Stops were frequently made to wipe off the frozen cast with a cloth. Some relief was gained by dousing some gasoline on the windshield face, but that lasted until evaporation of gasoline again permitted ice to form. All this occurred in spite of the fact that the windshield and car windows are equipped with celluloid "storm windows."

There are several remedies, says the A. A. A. bulletin, and the motorist would spare himself many agonized hours if he acquainted himself with them, carries them in his car and applies them when needed.

"Alcohol, salt and glycerine are three substances that deal very effectively with the ice-coated windshield," the bulletin says. "The motorist who desires to avoid this problem, which is responsible for so many accidents, should carry one of the three along with him on all his winter motor journeys. All lend themselves very readily to being made additions to the tool kit."

"If salt is the substance one decides to have handy for the emergency of this character, it should be applied when the windshield begins to collect ice. This creates a brine solution that will not freeze. It will be necessary to apply additional salt from time to time as the original coating washes off, but handled properly, the remedy is one of the most effective."

"Glycerine rubbed on the windshield forms a film to which water, snow and ice will not cling. In some ways, it is the best of the substances that may be used as an ice preventive. Alcohol serves the same purpose in much the same way, although its lighter viscosity makes it less effective."

"In addition to this, the motorist should keep his windshield cleaner operating at the highest efficiency. The icy windshield has been tolerated too long."

PEOPLE talk of passing compulsory automobile insurance in this state. Why not make it compulsory for every man to protect his loved ones against poverty, if he is taken suddenly from them. Some hope the time will come when a man gets an application for marriage that he be compelled before given the license to show that he will protect his wife and children with insurance of some kind.

You have heard it said many times that "when you drop any insurance," then is when the unexpected happens. And the thing you had previously insured against, be it covered by either fire, life, liability, sickness or accident insurance, is bound to occur.

FREE mail delivery for Crosby now seems practically assured. Everything possible is being done to meet federal requirements for this great convenience.

SYNOPSIS

Enrico de Solano y Vasquez, proud and romantic Spaniard, claims in 1776 for King Phillip of Spain the land surrounding San Francisco Bay. The Vasquez hacienda is erected on the broad acres of the hills overlooking the bay, and life moves along in the indolent and carefree manner of Old Spain. In 1838 two grandsons and their mother are the last of the proud line. The discovery of gold disturbs their peaceful existence. The eldest grandson is cruelly slain. His younger brother, Don Hernandez, now the sole male survivor of the Vasquez line, avenges his brother's death.

The game was held up to return the salute, and while an especially smitten male lingered longer than necessary over the salutation his opponent stealthily reached across, grabbed a couple of gold francs from the pot and drained the joint bottle of whiskey. The amorous one turned back to the game just in time to realize that he had been cheated. Out came his knife in an instant and he leaped up with a volley of curses. They clinched and staggered about the moving wagon until it hit a rut and threw them sprawling into the roadside. Still clinched they rolled around until contact with a deep mud puddle brought them to their senses. Yelling at the driver, they ran after the departing wagon amid the boisterous laughter and jeers of the painted girls.

All life was not like that during the Gold Rush, but unfortunately the Vasquezes' secluded existence prevented their knowing about the big and generous things that occurred. The romance of the California Gold Diggers was just as great in its way as the romance of Spain's own early explorations and settlement.

Fifty-eight years had passed since that memorable day of '48, which was the real beginning of San Francisco's prosperity. The city grew until it became the commercial capital of the west coast. The lawless days of the gold rush had become only slightly more circumspect, and at the beginning of the twentieth century it was a joyous pleasure loving city—the "Bohemia" of America. The Paris of the Pacific.

Gambling was rife and glittering dance halls flourished. The "Barbary Coast" and the famous "Cocktail Route" were the rendezvous of notables and the haunt of convicts. Blazing electric signs threw out their glow of welcome to all—rich and poor alike—the sinner and the saint. "Camp's," "Caesar's," "Neptune," "Midway," "Thalia," "Pup," "Fly Trap," and "The Poodle Dog," all paid their tribute in gold to a city government that was honeycombed with graft.

And just a few blocks away, yet separated by centuries of creed and custom, was Chinatown—the capital of California's fifty thousand Chinese population. At the turn of the East was there, with life that was good and much that was evil. Gambling rooms, opium dens, stores that were legitimately business, and houses whose business was illegitimate—all were centered in this section that outwardly was under civil jurisdiction but actually not at all governed by its laws and ordinances.

But even as San Francisco ever prospered and was well on the way to fulfill the brilliant destiny that was before her, the glory of the ancient Spanish founders grew dim. There indolent lives, the traditional love of comfort that had been handed down from one generation to another could not or would not compete with the active, growing civilization that was creeping upon them from the city below.

At the old Vasquez ranch high in the hills overlooking not only the encroaching city but the bay beyond and even the Farrallon Islands in the dim distance, the latest male descendant of the illustrious line held desperately to the ancestral acres.

Don Hernandez Vasquez, now in his seventies, had become a white-haired, dignified old aristocrat. He was still eloquent in manner with all the pride of the old Spanish nobility, and to his sorrow had seen the ranches and traditions of his old neighbors go, one by one, into the insatiable man of the city.

As he stood on the hillside, leaning on a gold-topped cane, gazing at the vast acreage that spread before him, he shook his head sadly. The end was inevitable. The ranch was pitiful by comparison to its previous splendor. The land was still there, to be sure. But what land! Overrun with scrubby growth, uncultivated, wild, it lay, a tragic and silent monument of the past.

His wandering glance finally took in the famous old ranch house. That too was but a symbol of the decay that had been going on for more years than he liked to remember. The walls were cracked and half covered with moss. Here and there huge gaps showed in the masonry, and over it all the vines had run riot; around it the shrubbery had grown wild.

He walked slowly toward the house with a shrug of his aristocratic shoulders. What was to be must be. He was living in the present but not of it. As he neared the patio his expression suddenly changed into one of enthusiasm and anticipation. Here at least was something that pleased him mightily.

The clinking of castanets, beautifully timed to the soft thrumming of a guitar, reached his ear. His eyes sparkled brightly and he leaned against the doorway watching the delightful scene that brought back a breath of the picturesque past.

Dolores Vasquez, the granddaughter of the ranch, was dancing. Her long full skirts cleared the floor of the patio and revealed daintily shod feet as she whirled. Her lovely head held proud and high nodded to the music's rhythm. Her beautiful eyes flashed merrily and her lips parted to smile at the faithful old peon who accompanied her on the guitar.

Loathing lazily on a rustic bench, gazing at Dolores through half closed eyes as he puffed carelessly on a cigarette, sat Don Luis, her very ardent admirer. Don Luis Costanzo was a twentieth century caballero dressed in the height of fashion, but nevertheless adhering as closely as possible to his ancestral influence. He sported a small, trimly waxed moustache which seemed a fitting climax to his high heeled boots, elaborate silk scarf and broad brimmed hat. Altogether he was exceedingly good to look upon—according to Don Luis.

"Why do you not smile at me, Dolores?" he objected as she continued to fling her entrancing smiles over her shoulder to the old peon who beamed on her with adoration as he strummed a gay Spanish air.

Dolores did not answer at once but continued dancing toward her grandfather, whom she had just noticed in the doorway.

As old Hernandez watched the charming picture his heart swelled with pride. Here was a Vasquez who was the fairest of them all. And as for Don Luis—well, was he not the son of an old friend and a fitting mate for his beloved Dolores? But then she had a way with her and even his experienced eyes could not determine anything but friendship for Don Luis in the actions of his granddaughter; he wanted to see her.

It was not always so. In his younger days the senoritas did not behave so calmly in the presence of a suitor. And once again his thoughts carried him back into the past. Back to the time when the very same patio echoed to the shouts and laughter of a dozen senoritas and as many dashing young Spaniards—some of them dancing as his own Dolores—others on the balcony singing and applauding.

Al! but it was hard to grow old —in poverty. As Dolores finished the dance she blew a kiss from her dainty fingertips and made a deep courtesy before him. Then as he continued to smile sadly she laid her hand consolingly on his arm and said, "Don't worry, dear—some day we shall live again in the glory that has gone."

Vasquez shook his head sadly. "No, my dear, the past is gone and the glory and fame of the Vasquez have gone with it."

She looked at him pityingly for a moment, then her face brightened with a happy idea. Laughing gaily, she pirouetted before him, saying, "See! I shall always dance and make you think of the great fiesta you love to speak of—when you first met my grandmother." Wrapping her mantilla about her, she began an old fashioned Spanish dance.

New York's Experiment

With a Woman in High Office Unhappy

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 1.—(UP)—New York State's first experiment with a woman in high office reached an unhappy climax today when Governor Al Smith decided that the evidence which has been accumulating for months against Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state, should be turned over to a grand jury.

Gov. Smith's decision was based on a special inquiry which had concluded that Mrs. Knapp's case should be reviewed by a grand jury with a view to indicting her for forgery, false audits and certifications, illegal removal of state records and grand larceny.

BUTLER, ERICKSON ARRANGE PROGRAM

American Legion Quartet's Singing
Captivates Rotarians

JOE GOULD IN ADDRESS

Takes as Topic "Proper Conservation of Wild Life
Resources"

Ernest Butler and C. N. Erickson had charge of the program at the Rotary club last Tuesday and presented the American Legion quartet and Joe Gould. The quartet is composed of Basil T. Heath, George Sweet, Amos Maghan and George Bates and was in excellent voice. They sang "My, Gal Sal," a song about the quartet, "Roll dem Bones" and "Cows in the Meadow." They were given so much applause and so many demands for encores that they were certainly convinced that their numbers pleased the Rotarians.

Joe Gould, Rotarian of Staples, spoke on "The Proper Conservation of Wild Life Resources," and its dependence upon the development of popular sentiment through education.

"It is indeed gratifying to those actively identified with this endeavor, to observe a constant growth of interest in the subject among all classes of citizens.

That interest no longer is restricted to the sportsmen who long ago took the initiative and have sponsored so many of the game and fish laws on the statutes today, but is shared by many others who may neither hunt nor fish, but who recognize a responsibility in maintaining their heritage of the out-of-doors and passing it on unspoiled to the generations to follow.

Most of you, no doubt, are familiar with the story of unnecessary waste and despoliation that parallels our history of development; a progress that has reduced many of our natural resources to a mere remnant of a great heritage. We are told that the pioneers found game and fish in such abundance that they appeared limitless and inexhaustible, and they wasted accordingly. Covers and lakes and streams were depleted, and depletion, in many sections of the country, amounted to extermination before the need to conserve became widely recognized. Fortunately, Minnesota was able to profit by the experience of other sections before it was entirely too late, and the wild life conservation program was launched here while there was still something to conserve.

Without sportsmen co-operation, even the game laws would be far less effectual, for enforcement is difficult and a spirit of law observance is highly necessary. This is the spirit that is engendered by education, and every organization, agency or individual that contributes something to a better understanding of the purposes and the intent of the game and fish laws and the need to protect and preserve our wild life resources adds so much to the progress of real conservation.

Minnesota's wild life is recognized as a common heritage in section 2 of the laws relating to wild animals, which provides: "The ownership of wild animals, so far as they are capable of ownership, is hereby declared to be in the State, not as a proprietor, but in its sovereign capacity as the representative and for the benefit of all its people in common."

If Minnesota's wild life is a common possession, then the conservation of game and fish and fur-bearing animals is a problem that merits popular consideration, the proper solution of which rests with the active interest of all classes of citizens. There are several conservation organizations, the more active of which are the Izaak Walton League of America and the Minnesota State Game Protective League. Recently the Minnesota Conservation Council was organized. This Council is made up of representatives of the various organizations and its purpose is to get concerted action on all problems of great moment.

Success of conservation will be based largely on education. Education is necessary to enlist the support and co-operation of those who may not understand that enforcement and observance of game and fish laws is essential to the perpetuation of their privilege, and to enlighten those who confuse sensible conservation with sentimentality.

We have small need of any more laws. Most of the legislation now needed is to amend the existing laws so they are more practical as to enforcement and to make them more nearly air-tight. At present, many of them are too easily evaded. Many well-meaning but misguided people are continually advocating new measures that harm rather than help the cause of conservation. We should simplify, rather than add to, the laws we already have on our statutes.

Most of our efforts in an educational way should be directed to the coming generation. Once we establish clearly in the minds of our youngsters the benefits of well planned conservation, we have practically attained our objective. A boy who understands the benefits of conservation will spread more gospel than a dozen grown men. Recently I have had occasion to address the boy scouts of two towns and I feel sure that these same lads will give me a lot of valuable assistance. Nearly all boys go fishing and the mere knowledge of proper handling of fish when returning them to the water. This, in itself, may seem a trivial thing, yet it is of great importance in saving undersized fish, and is a gospel that boys will spread far and wide. There are numerous things of this sort that boys will take up very readily and they will call the attention of grown up sportsmen to them. These same boys will do much to stop violations of our game laws for they have, as a rule, no hesitancy in calling violators and a calling down from a boy is something that most every man will avoid, if it is possible to do so.

While educating the youth, we should in no wise neglect the grown-up. It is a recognized fact that many of our best and most consistent conservationists are former violators. They have been made to see the error of their ways and have learned that the waste and greed of former years will soon wipe out what is left of that once wonderful heritage. Most any man with one or more sons can easily be educated as he will have the future welfare of these youngsters at heart.

Unfortunately, we have many who are concerned only with their own selfish desire and who think there is no limit to the supply on which we are drawing. It has been said, and with considerable truth, that we would make greater strides along conservation lines if we had but ten per cent of the wild life that we have now. That condition would bring to mind more clearly just how serious the situation really is.

This was exemplified in Pennsylvania. Just a few years ago that state could not provide even a little rabbit shooting. Today, Pennsylvania has better all round hunting than any other state. This condition was brought about by conservation but it was accomplished only because everybody worked together. Pennsylvania sportsmen proved that conservation would not only preserve, but that it could bring back what which was regarded as lost.

Game and fish laws and regulations are promulgated not to curtail the privileges to which the sportsmen have been accustomed, but to perpetuate them. Unfortunately, not all hunters and fishermen are sportsmen, and not all those who neither hunt nor fish acknowledge the rights of others to do so. Open and closed seasons, bag, catch and size limits are necessary. Game and fish laws must be enforced, and this is an important activity of the Game and Fish department, but there are many other problems to be dealt with if the wild life resources of this state are to be maintained, and if the privileges that have been ours are to be passed on to others.

Admitting we have wasted our natural resources, it should be incumbent upon us not only to protect the remnant, but to reconstruct and restore. Our depleted waters and covers must be restocked. To this end, the Game and Fish department maintains a bureau of fish propagation, a game farm and other activities designed to perpetuate, by replacement, our wild life resources. The department is handicapped in its administration of the game farm because the state merely leases this farm and under these conditions it cannot make the permanent changes and improvements on this farm that are really necessary for 100 percent efficiency. It is to be hoped that within a very few years we may own our own game farm and when as and if that time comes, our aims and objects will be more nearly accomplished.

Artificial propagation, while important, is only supplemental to natural reproduction, so it is important that game fish be protected during their spawning season. It is pretty well agreed among those who have given serious study to the problem, that such protection should be afforded not only during or immediately preceding the spawning season, but during the winter months, when the females are carrying their eggs, almost fully developed, and the curtailment of winter fishing is one of the important proposals now before us. There are those of you who will not agree with me in this case, yet I do not know of one progressive move in conservation that will not interfere with the desires of some of us. It is incumbent on each of us to lay aside all selfish wishes in the effort to further conservation in all its phases.

The maintenance of lake water levels, the prevention of water pollution, the control of predatory species, involving in the case of the Superior State Game Refuge in Northeastern Minnesota the employment of warden trappers, and many other problems enter into the affairs of the Game and Fish department, presenting varied subjects of interest, in the consideration of which the department welcomes general public participation.

In connection with the matter of lake water levels, let me dwell for a moment on the matter of the proposed dams in the boundary waters in the Rainy Lake watershed. All of you, no doubt, have heard more or less of the series of dams that Mr. Backus proposes to construct in this region. Some few months ago, while doing some special work for the department at Winton, it was my good fortune to make a canoe trip for some cached supplies that took me through some eighty miles of the lakes and streams, that would be affected by this project.

In most of these lakes there are innumerable islands, timbered and beautiful beyond description. The series of dams proposed by Mr. Backus would submerge practically every one of these islands and all that would be left would be a bunch of dead snags sticking out of the water. The same would apply to the shore lines of the various lakes. Besides, there are a number of beautiful waterfalls and every one of these would be obliterated. The Superior National Forest is the one wild spot left in this section of the country and its natural beauty rivals that of any spot in the world.

When the hearings of 1925 were held, Mr. Backus' project had some support from the Canadian side. It is encouraging to note that our neighbors across the line are now awake to the danger of these dams and they realize that nothing short of concerted action on the part of both countries will defeat the despoliation of this wonderful playground. During the past two years extensive surveys have been made, and while no one knows just what these will show, it is well that we should be prepared to successfully combat any scheme that will mar the beauty and splendor of this wonderful spot.

There are so many phases and angles to the question of conservation that it is impossible to treat even lightly with but a few of them. One of the outstanding problems confronting us is the matter of pollution. Many of our streams have been made uninhabitable by pollution. In the past, no attempt has been made to stop the dumping of refuse of every description into our lakes and streams. Many industrial concerns seem to feel that the logical way to dispose of refuse is to merely dump it into a lake or stream.

If stream pollution is to be effectively controlled, a definite cooperative and constructive program with industry must be initiated. This program must not be radical or destructive, but constructive in every respect. We have no desire to curtail industry in any way, yet we must insist that industry realize the seriousness of the problem and co-operate in its solution to the fullest extent. Industry must initiate an aggressive and continuous program to reduce their wastes by utilization or so treat them that they do not cause objectionable stream pollution. Michigan has given her industries one year in which to clean up. What Michigan is doing can be done in Minnesota if we demand it.

Conservation means guarding, preserving, and if possible, enhancing the natural resources of our country that we may enjoy them to the best advantage and hand them down unspoiled to our children. Conservation is not a mere altruism to posterity, it is our own clear gain.

In giving you my views of the work of a game warden, let me begin by telling you that the saying that "no one loves a game warden" is not quite half true. Primarily, the work of a game warden consists largely in being able to use his head. There are many cases where the most good may be accomplished by not making an arrest rather than by making one. This is especially true as regards boys. I believe that to arrest a boy, except in extreme cases, is to make a criminal. Once you arrest a boy for infractions of our game and fish laws, he immediately sets out to figure out how he can outwit the game warden. In the ten or twelve cases where I have found a boy violating the law, I have never made an arrest. Instead, I have given the lad a friendly talk, calling his attention to the wrong he has done, then giving him pointers on conservation and showing him what it means to him personally. Under such circumstances that boy is in the proper frame of mind to absorb principles of conservation and he will never forget them. I find that the lad is spreading the doctrine of law observance.

With some of the grown-ups it is a different story. It is unfortunate that we have so many men who cannot be made see that unless we conserve we will soon reach the end of our natural resources. This condition is largely due to their selfish desires, while others feel that their pull will bring them out of any trouble. In my territory, the Finns and Poles are the most persistent violators. A number of them have to be run in about twice a year to keep them within bounds. This is especially true regarding violations of the fish laws.

A warden soon gets the reputation of being hard boiled. Undoubtedly, there are instances where this reputation is well earned. That's because he has to be. As a rule, however, I believe you will find them as human as anyone.

Perhaps the greatest handicap a warden works under, is the lack of cooperation from the average layman. We get innumerable reports of violations but the information usually comes in such a way that it is practically impossible to use it. We will get news of a violation where the informant has actually seen the unlawful act committed, yet he will not swear to the complaint nor will he appear as a witness. The reason assigned is that he doesn't want to be known as a squealer or, that the violator is a neighbor and might do him (the informant) some harm in an underhand way. I can see some reason for this view being taken but in very rare instances. Let me say right here that as long as people take this view of things law enforcement will not be complete. The game, fish or fur belongs to each of us and there is no reason why we should not take the same view as in a case where a thief was stealing some of our personal property. In such an instance, I dare say that you and I would take some very drastic steps to protect our property. Yet, these cases are parallel and until we view them as such, we are not doing our duty as good citizens and we cannot be classed as conservationists. When violators learn that the people generally are back of law enforcement they are going to become discouraged and will have the proper respect for the measures of protection.

Game refugees and public shooting grounds are receiving an encouraging proportion of attention in the legislatures of various states. Florida, Indiana, Missouri, North Carolina and Utah have made the greatest strides in this direction. Florida has a commission which acts in conjunction with the state game commissioner in selecting and setting aside breeding grounds and refuges. They are empowered to buy lands for this purpose, the only restriction being that they may not pay more than ten dollars per acre. North Carolina is making a survey of swamp and other lands having in view their desirability as refuges. Utah is working along similar lines. Game refuges were the secret of Pennsylvania's come back. In our own state a large number of refuges have been created but the number is, by far, too small. Prominent among these is a proposed chain of refuges for migratory water fowl, this chain to run from the Upper Mississippi game refuge in a north-westerly direction across the state. This chain now reaches to Little Falls. An attempt was made last summer to establish a refuge of 17,000 acres near Staples which would have added a link of this chain. The Staples refuge would have been one of the finest in the state for it is an ideal breeding ground for game animals as well as game birds. Through the efforts of a number of misguided and near-sighted so-called sportsmen this move was defeated.

The idea back of this proposed chain of refuges is that it will establish a line of flight for migratory water fowl and those of us who live near it will be offered some wonderful duck shooting. It is astonishing how soon wild ducks learn where they are protected. By nature they will move about each day on either side of the refuge and it is in this outside territory that the hunter will get his shooting.

Refuges may be set aside for some particular species such as water fowl. In selecting a refuge for water fowl a good lake with an abundance of feed is the important thing to consider. If you contemplate planting, say, Hungarian partridge, you should have a refuge that affords the proper feeding grounds. Any planting should have the protection that a refuge provides. In spite of the ill-advised opposition to refuges, the time is not far distant when the number of refuges in Minnesota will be much greater than at present. It is our only salvation for preserving our hunting for ourselves and our posterity.

FAIR ORGANIZERS INCORPORATED

File Incorporation Papers of Cuyuna Range Agricultural Association, January 27

NAME BOARD OF DIRECTORS
Ambition of Association to Create a Better Exhibition Each Year

Around a box stove in a farm house four years ago one winter night a few farmers of the Cuyuna Range first discussed plans for the organization of an association to sponsor the holding of annual agricultural exhibitions.

Today those same farmers are a part of the Cuyuna Range Agricultural Association who have realized their primary ambition at that first meeting to incorporate and be legally recognized as an association. During the three years of existence of the association exhibitions have been held at the Crosby-Ironton high school each fall with wonderful success. The farmers of the Cuyuna Range have stood behind the organizers and are out to make the association a complete success.

The association became incorporated last week. Articles of incorporation were filed on January 27. Incorporators are Fred Blomberg, Carrie M. Taylor, Fred N. Johnson, H. J. Dickerson, Adolph Prusheck, Edward E. Hawley, Fred Schwank, The board of directors includes besides the incorporators: J. H. Lambert, Fred Bock, Ernest Pearson, William Rau, Con Faupel, William Buchite, Mrs. A. D. Darling, Ed Lamb, Jr., Harry Hughey, Homer Wells, Walter Waffensmith, Gust Gruenhagen, Mrs. Homer Wells, Fred Atwood.

JOE GOULD IN ADDRESS

Resources"

Ernest Butler and C. N. Erickson had charge of the program at the Rotary club last Tuesday and presented the American Legion quartet and Joe Gould. The quartet is composed of Basil T. Heath, George Sweet, Amos Maghan and George Bates and was in excellent voice. They sang "My Gal Sal," a song about the quartet, "Roll dem Bones" and "Cows in the Meadow." They were given so much applause and so many demands for encores that they were certainly convinced that their numbers pleased the Rotarians.

Joe Gould, Rotarian of Staples, spoke on "The Proper Conservation of Wild Life Resources," and its dependence upon the development of popular sentiment through education.

"It is indeed gratifying to those actively identified with this endeavor, to observe a constant growth of interest in the subject among all classes of citizens.

That interest no longer is restricted to the sportsmen who long ago took the initiative and have sponsored so many of the game and fish laws on the statutes today, but is shared by many others who may neither hunt nor fish, but who recognize a responsibility in maintaining their heritage of the out-of-doors and passing it on unspoiled to the generations to follow.

Most of you, no doubt, are familiar with the story of unnecessary waste and despoliation that parallels our history of development; a progress that has reduced many of our natural resources to a mere remnant of a great heritage. We are told that the pioneers found game and fish in such abundance that they appeared limitless and inexhaustible, and they wasted accordingly. Covers and lakes and streams were depleted, and depletion, in many sections of the country, amounted to extermination before the need to conserve became widely recognized. Fortunately, Minnesota was able to profit by the experience of other sections before it was entirely too late, and the wild life conservation program was launched here while there was still something to conserve.

The Staples refuge would have been one of the finest in the state for it is an ideal breeding ground for game animals as well as game birds. Through the efforts of a number of misguided and near-sighted so-called sportsmen this move was defeated.

The idea back of this proposed chain of refuges is that it will establish a line of flight for migratory water fowl and those of us who live near it will be offered some wonderful duck shooting. It is astonishing how soon wild ducks learn where they are protected. By nature they will move about each day on either side of the refuge and it is in this outside territory that the hunter will get his shooting.

Refuges may be set aside for some particular species such as water fowl. In selecting a refuge for water fowl a good lake with an abundance of feed is the important thing to consider. If you contemplate planting, say, Hungarian partridge, you should have a refuge that affords the proper feeding grounds. Any planting should have the protection that a refuge provides. In spite of the ill-advised opposition to refuges, the time is not far distant when the number of refuges in Minnesota will be much greater than at present. It is our only salvation for preserving our hunting for ourselves and our posterity.

FAIR ORGANIZERS INCORPORATED

File Incorporation Papers of Cuyuna Range Agricultural Association, January 27

NAME BOARD OF DIRECTORS
Ambition of Association to Create a Better Exhibition Each Year

Around a box stove in a farm house four years ago one winter night a few farmers of the Cuyuna Range first discussed plans for the organization of an association to sponsor the holding of annual agricultural exhibitions.

Today these same farmers are a part of the Cuyuna Range Agricultural Association who have realized their primary ambition at that first meeting to incorporate and be legally recognized as an association. During the three years of existence of the association, exhibitions have been held at the Crosby-Ironton high school each fall with wonderful success. The farmers of the Cuyuna Range have stood behind the organizers and are out to make the association a complete success.

The association became incorporated last week. Articles of incorporation were filed on January 27. Incorporators are Fred Blomberg, Carrie M. Taylor, Fred N. Johnson, H. J. Dickerson, Adolph Prushek, Edward E. Hawley, Fred Schwanke. The board of directors includes besides the incorporators: J. H. Lambert, Fred Bock, Ernest Pearson, William Rau, Con Faupel, William Buchte, Mrs. A. D. Darling, Ed Lamb, Jr., Harry Hughey, Homer Wells, Walter Waffensmith, Gust Gruenhagen, Mrs. Homer Wells, Fred Atwood.

HUGGINS A MYSTERY IN BASEBALL WORLD

AT NEW YORK SEEING ABOUT HIS CHAMPIONS

IN 10 YEARS CLUB HAS WON 5 LEAGUE PENNANTS, 2 WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Feb. 1—(UP)—Miller T. Huggins, the mite manager of the New York Yankees, came to town today to see about his world baseball champions.

Almost furtively, Huggins ducked around the corner of Broadway and slipped up 42nd street to the offices of the Yankees for a private conference with Col. Jacob Ruppert and Ed Barrow.

One of the strangest characters in the game, Huggins and his methods continue to mystify a greater part of the baseball world. Overshadowed by blustering Babe Ruth and a team of high priced stars, Huggins prefers to keep his tiny figure always in the background.

But the records speak for themselves, and they show that in ten years under Huggins the Yankees, once the joke club of the league, have won five American league pennants and two world championships.

Huggins, in preparing for his eleventh season at the helm of the Yankees, realizes that baseball fans and magnates live in the present and not in the past, and his present mission concerned the line-up for 1928.

Several members of the Yankees' all-star cast haven't been signed, but Waite Hoyt, right-handed pitcher, and Mike Gazella, utility infielder, are the only out and out holdouts.

Hoyt puts his case plainly—"I won 22 games last year and I want more dough."

Gazella has only a .278 batting average to fling in the faces of Messrs. Ruppert, Barrow and Huggins, but he, too, is dissatisfied with his wage.

The Yankees pay their players liberally, but since they pay Ruth and Gehring, the home run twins, almost a $100,000 between them this season, they may not feel in a mood just at this moment to meet the demands of Hoyt and Gazella.

Hoyt may be traded, and Gazella may be pitched in for good measure, for a left-handed pitcher. The name of Joe Shaute of the Indians has been linked in such a trade.

Tony Lazzeri and Mark Koenig, the keystone kids, are two other important members of the Yankee combination who haven't affixed their signatures to contracts, but they are expected to come into the fold shortly.

When all the Yankees are signed up the payroll of the world champions is expected to approach $300,000 and label the Yankees as the highest priced ball club of all time.

What is worrying Huggins most is his pitching staff and a guardian for third base.

It looks as if we will have to depend upon George Pipgras, who blossomed into a star in his own right in the world series, Herb Pennock, the aging southpaw, Wiley Moore, the 1927 rookie, Urban Shocker, who has seen his best days, and Hoyt, or his successor.

Dutch Reuther, who won 13 games last season, and Bob Shawkey are gone.

The Yanks have 11 rookie pitchers on their roster and there may be another find among them like Wiley Moore.

Joe Dugan will attempt to get his trick knee in shape to win back the third base, but no one is relying on him. Gene Robertson, the former St. Louis Browns who was bought from St. Paul this fall, may win the berth.

The Yanks have another great infielder coming up from St. Paul in Leo Durocher, but he's a shortstop and probably will be used as understudy to Koenig.

Stecher to Train for Lewis Match

St. Louis, Mo.—Training quarters for Joe Stecher, world heavyweight wrestling champion, in preparation for his title match with Ed "Strangler" Lewis here Feb. 20, will be selected today by Anton Stecher, his brother and manager. Lewis also will move here soon.

DEMPSEY SAYS HIS EYES O. K.

LEGS SHOW NO SIGNS OF GOING BACK ON HIM SAYS THE FORMER CHAMPION

Miami, Fla., Feb. 1—(UP)—Jack Dempsey will not compete again for the heavyweight championship, Tex Rickard announced here today.

Rickard refused to elaborate on the statement, but said "Dempsey has told me he thinks it advisable not to engage in further ring contests."

He did not indicate the opponent for Gene Tunney in the proposed bout in June.

After a conference with Tunney and Billy Gibson, the champion's manager, Rickard said he also "was undecided where he would hold the next championship contest."

Tunney will positively fight in June, Rickard said. A tempting offer to stage the fight in London has been received he said.

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 1—(UP)—Tex Rickard was expected to announce "something definite" today regarding Gene Tunney's next heavy weight championship fight. Rickard promised the statement yesterday.

Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, was to arrive today and it was expected he would confer with Rickard.

Meanwhile, Tunney continued his training grind, started yesterday. He began his work by skipping the rope for ten minutes and then punched the bag. He weighed 194.

Los Angeles, Feb. 1—(UP)—Jack Dempsey is in good condition and is "still dicker" with Tex Rickard for another championship battle, he said here in reply to reports that weak eyes would force him to quit the ring.

He said his eyes were all right, his legs showed no signs of going back on him, and he expected a Tunney match to be arranged soon.

He had been in ill health since

LEGION-FRAZEE CLASH IS BIG EVENT TONIGHT

TEAMS MEET IN MAIN ATTRACTION AT B. H. S. GYM IN SECOND LAST HOME GAME

VISITORS SHOW REMARKABLE SPEED; NORTHEAST VS SPEED DEMONS IN PRELIMINARY

Braierd cage events tonight at the high school gym consists of a doubleheader with the American Legion-Frazee forming the main attraction. The Northeast five and Fosters Speed Demons meet in the preliminary game at 7:30 p. m.

Frazee felt the sting of defeat only once this year when the Braierd team nosed them out by the count of 29 to 28 during the earlier part of the season on the Frazee floor. The team has won 54 games and lost eight in the last three years.

Manager Peterson announced the starting lineup as follows: forwards, Marshall, Fitzharris; center, Whitlock; guards Lowe and Heikkinen.

Next Wednesday will be the last home game of the season for the Legion team when they play the fast Wright five.

HUGH JENNINGS DIES OF SPINAL MENINGITIS

JENNINGS WAS ONE OF BASEBALL'S MOST COLORFUL FIGURES

SUCCUMBS TO ILLNESS WHICH FORCED HIM FROM GAME IN 1925

Seranton, Pa., Feb. 1—(UP)—Hugh Jennings, one of baseball's most colorful figures, died early today of an illness which forced him out of the national pastime in 1925. He had been in ill health since he was forced to give up his position as assistant coach of the New York Giants, but his condition did not become critical until Friday.

His illness was diagnosed as spinal meningitis. Doctors watched over him hour by hour and Jennings' remarkable constitution kept him alive, even though he was unconscious most of the time.

Shortly after midnight today he became worse and at 1:20 a. m. he died.

Funeral plans have not been determined definitely but probably the services will be Friday. It was said this morning. Burial will be in Moscow, Pa.

Relatives were at the bedside when Jennings died. He did not recover consciousness in the last few hours, it was said.

He was 56 years old.

The real popularity of Jennings, known fondly as Hughey, dated back to his management of the Detroit Tigers when he shared with Ty Cobb in the success of the old Tigers.

From 1907 to 1921 he managed the Tigers and during that time he guided the team to three championships. During his time Ty Cobb reached his greatest fame.

Jennings was widely famed for his great coaching of "E-E-Yah" which rang out over major league baseball diamonds for a quarter of a century.

In his playing days Jennings was a catcher, a first baseman and a shortstop. He gained his greatest fame at short stop.

The proposed structure will cost about $450,000, and the bridge will replace the present one constructed in 1884.

The new bridge will be in service in the fall of 1929, Babcock said.

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea

By JEAN MACON

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grand-mother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

HUGGINS A MYSTERY IN BASEBALL WORLD

MANAGER KEEPS HIS TINY FIGURE IN THE BACK-GROUND

IN 10 YEARS CLUB HAS WON 5 LEAGUE PENNANTS, 2 WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Feb. 1.—(UP)—Miller T. Huggins, the mite manager of the New York Yankees, came to town today to see about his world baseball champions.

Almost furtively, Huggins ducked around the corner of Broadway and slipped up 42nd street to the offices of the Yankees for a private conference with Col. Jacob Ruppert and Ed Barrow.

One of the strangest characters in the game, Huggins and his methods continue to mystify a greater part of the baseball world. Overshadowed by blustering Babe Ruth and a team of high priced stars, Huggins prefers to keep his tiny figure always in the background.

But the records speak for themselves, and they show that in ten years under Huggins the Yankees, once the joke club of the league, have won five American league pennants and two world championships.

Huggins, in preparing for his eleventh season at the helm of the Yankees, realizes that baseball fans and magnates live in the present and not in the past, and his present mission concerned the line-up for 1928.

Several members of the Yankees' all-star cast haven't been signed, but Waite Hoyt, right-handed pitcher, and Mike Gazella, utility infielder, are the only out and out holdouts.

Hoyt puts his case plainly—"I won 22 games last year and I want more dough."

Gazella has only a .278 batting average to fling in the faces of Messrs. Ruppert, Barrow and Huggins, but he, too, is dissatisfied with his wage.

The Yankees pay their players liberally, but since they pay Ruth and Gehring, the home run twins, almost a $100,000 between them this season, they may not feel in a mood just at this moment to meet the demands of Hoyt and Gazella.

Hoyt may be traded, and Gazella may be pitched in for good measure, for a left-handed pitcher. The name of Joe Shaute of the Indians has been linked in such a trade.

Tony Lazzeri and Mark Koenig, the keystone kids, are two other important members of the Yankee combination who haven't affixed their signatures to contracts, but they are expected to come into the fold shortly.

When all the Yankees are signed up the payroll of the world champions is expected to approach $300,000 and label the Yankees as the highest priced ball club of all time.

What is worrying Huggins most is his pitching staff and a guardian for third base.

It looks as if we will have to depend upon George Pipgras, who blossomed into a star in his own right in the world series, Herb Pennock, the aging southpaw, Wiley Moore, the 1927 rookie, Urban Shocker, who has seen his best days, and Hoyt, or his successor.

Dutch Reuther, who won 13 games last season, and Bob Shawkey are gone.

The Yanks have 11 rookie pitchers on their roster and there may be another find among them like Wiley Moore.

Joe Dugan will attempt to get his trick knee in shape to win back the third base, but no one is relying on him. Gene Robertson, the former St. Louis Browns who was bought from St. Paul this fall, may win the berth.

The Yanks have another great infielder coming up from St. Paul in Leo Durocher, but he's a shortstop and probably will be used as understudy to Koenig.

Stecher to Train for Lewis Match

LOCALS HOPE TO STOP SIX FOOT CAGERS

DEMPSEY SAYS HIS EYES O. K.

LEGS SHOW NO SIGNS OF GOING BACK ON HIM SAYS THE FORMER CHAMPION

Miami, Fla., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Jack Dempsey will not compete again for the heavyweight championship, Tex Rickard announced here today.

Rickard refused to elaborate on the statement, but said "Dempsey has told me he thinks it advisable not to engage in further ring contests."

He did not indicate the opponent for Gene Tunney in the proposed bout in June.

After a conference with Tunney and Billy Gibson, the champion's manager, Rickard said he also "was undecided where he would hold the next championship contest."

Tunney will positively fight in June, Rickard said. A tempting offer to stage the fight in London has been received he said.

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Tex Rickard was expected to announce "something definite" today regarding Gene Tunney's next heavy weight championship fight. Rickard promised the statement yesterday.

Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, was to arrive today and it was expected he would confer with Rickard.

Meanwhile, Tunney continued his training grind, started yesterday. He began his work by skipping the rope for ten minutes and then punched the bag. He weighed 194.

Los Angeles, Feb. 1.—(UP)—Jack Dempsey is in good condition and is "still dickering" with Tex Rickard for another championship battle, he said here in reply to reports that weak eyes would force him to quit the ring.

He said his eyes were all right, his legs showed no signs of going back on him, and he expected a Tunney match to be arranged soon.

LEGION-FRAZEE CLASH IS BIG EVENT TONIGHT

TEAMS MEET IN MAIN ATTRACTION AT B. H. S. GYM IN SECOND LAST HOME GAME

VISITORS SHOW REMARKABLE SPEED; NORTHEAST VS SPEED DEMONS IN PRELIMINARY

Braierd cage events tonight at the high school gym consists of a doubleheader with the American Legion-Frazee forming the main attraction. The Northeast five and Fosters Speed Demons meet in the preliminary game at 7:30 p. m.

Frazee felt the sting of defeat only once this year when the Braierd team nosed them out by the count of 29 to 28 during the earlier part of the season on the Frazee floor. The team has won 54 games and lost eight in the last three years.

Manager Peterson announced the starting lineup as follows: forwards, Marshall, Fitzharris; center, Whitlock; guards Lowe and Heikkinen.

Next Wednesday will be the last home game of the season for the Legion team when they play the fast Wright five.

HUGH JENNINGS DIES OF SPINAL MENINGITIS

JENNINGS WAS ONE OF BASEBALL'S MOST COLORFUL FIGURES

SUCCUMBS TO ILLNESS WHICH FORCED HIM FROM GAME IN 1925

Seranton, Pa., Feb. 1.—(UP)—Hugh Jennings, one of baseball's most colorful figures, died early today of an illness which forced him out of the national pastime in 1925. He had been in ill health since he was forced to give up his position as assistant coach of the New York Giants, but his condition did not become critical until Friday.

His illness was diagnosed as spinal meningitis. Doctors watched over him hour by hour and Jennings' remarkable constitution kept him alive, even though he was unconscious most of the time.

Shortly after midnight today he became worse and at 1:20 a. m. he died.

Funeral plans have not been determined definitely but probably the services will be Friday, it was said this morning. Burial will be in Moscow, Pa.

Relatives were at the bedside when Jennings died. He did not recover consciousness in the last few hours, it was said.

He was 56 years old.

The real popularity of Jennings, known fondly as "Hughey," dated back to his management of the Detroit Tigers when he shared with Ty Cobb in the success of the old Tigers.

From 1907 to 1921 he managed the Tigers and during that time he guided the team to three championships. During his time Ty Cobb reached his greatest fame.

Jennings was widely famed for his great coaching of "E-E-Yah" which rang out over major league baseball diamonds for a quarter of a century.

In his playing days Jennings was a catcher, a first baseman and a shortstop. He gained his greatest fame at short stop.
